The HESI A² is a computerized nursing entrance exam required for applying to the Associate Degree of Nursing program. There is a 4 hour time limit for examinees to take the HESI A2 that begins when the instructions are read. However, the average time most examinees take for completing the entire exam is two and a half to three hours. This can vary depending on your reading speed and amount of time to answer questions. Further information regarding the HESI test is available at <https://evolve.elsevier.com/staticPages/index.html>.

HESI Test Results & Re-test Policy

1. The test can only be taken twice during an academic year. If the test is taken more than twice in an application period, the first test scores will be used for application scoring purposes.
2. If you take the HESI test during 2 different application periods, the latest test scores will be used in the ranking for admission into the nursing program.
3. A minimum score of 75 (please refer to HESI Testing Logistics for further details) on the tests are required before applying to the program.
4. Previous HESI scores may be used if taken after January 1, 2009; submit official copies of your scores with your application. Minimum score of 75 is required (please refer to HESI Testing Logistics for further details).
5. For scores to be considered for application to the nursing program, you must wait two (2) months before retesting and may not test more than twice in an academic year (that includes the initial examination and the retesting). Regardless of the sections passed/not passed on the first attempt, all examinees will be required to retake all required areas again. Therefore, it is best to take the HESI as early as possible in the event a retest is needed.
